In this issue of the HSI Journal, we have featured ten articles comprising eight original research articles and two medical case reports. These peer-reviewed articles cover a myriad of topical issues in the health sciences with a wide spread over several cross-cutting topics. With each passing day, we continue to receive manuscript submissions from around the world which brings variety to our publications and we are very grateful to all authors for this. HSI Journal continues to make giant strides. It is currently indexed on African Journal Online (AJOL) and will very soon feature on other indexing platforms as well. The entire editorial team is elated that this issue of the HSI Journal has been published. We look forward to the next issue which promises to be a notch higher in terms of quality as we continue to strive towards perfection and to improve upon the impact of our journals. To our cherished readers, we look forward to receiving more quality articles from you. We hope that you help to spread the good news about this journal and urge other scientists and players in the health sciences to choose the HSI Journal as the preferred place for publication and reading of scientific works.

Thank you
